Five Years of "Mischievous Activity": A Study of Governor Hennessy's Policies towards the Chinese in Hong Kong, 1877-1882

POON Shuk Wah

A thesis submitted in partial fulfillment for the degree of Master of Philosophy

March 1995

HONG KONG BAPTIST UNIVERSITY
ABSTRACT

Sir John Pope Hennessy, the eighth governor of Hong Kong, distinguished himself from his predecessors by introducing various humanitarian and anti-racial reforms in the colony. Hennessy maintained that the Chinese in Hong Kong who contributed ninety per cent of the tax income of the colonial government had been unfairly treated. The economic ascendancy of Chinese merchants as a social class in Hong Kong which began in the 1860s also convinced him that the opinions of the Chinese could no longer be ignored. The Chinese regarded Hennessy as their “Number One Good Friend”. However, both the Colonial Office in London and the British merchants in Hong Kong questioned the desirability of carrying out such reforms in Hong Kong, a colony with “peculiar circumstances.” Though Hennessy’s policies had been described by the Colonial Office as “mischievous activity”, they were eventually approved by the Secretary of State for the Colonies, the head of the Colonial Office. This thesis attempts to illustrate Hennessy’s governorship and to give account on the approval from the Colonial Office for his reforms. As both the Chinese and European communities had voiced their opinions to the Colonial Office regarding Hennessy’s administration, the impact of the voices from these two racial sections on the Colonial Office is examined.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION ........................................................................................................ p.1 - p.6

CHAPTER ONE: ........................................................................................................ p.7 - p.30
THE COLONIAL RULE AND THE CHINESE, 1840-1876
  Colonial Policies towards the Chinese, 1840s-1850s
  Colonial Policies towards the Chinese, 1860s-1876s
  Chinese Attitudes towards the Colonial Rule
  British Merchants and the Government of Hong Kong
  Hong Kong and the Colonial Office
  Conclusion

CHAPTER TWO: ..................................................................................................... p.31 - p.54
1877-1882--AN OVERVIEW OF HENNESSY'S ADMINISTRATION
  John Pope Hennessy: His Life
  Hennessy and the European Community in Hong Kong
  Hong Kong Telegraph: Another European Perspective
  Hennessy and the Chinese Community in Hong Kong
  Hennessy, the Colonial Office and the British Public
  Conclusion

CHAPTER THREE: ................................................................................................. p.55 - p.78
PENAL REFORMS
  Penal Reforms: Mandate from the Colonial Office?
  Hennessy's Policies and European Community's Arguments
  Public Meeting, 7 October 1878
  Attitude of the Colonial Office
  British Parliament and the Penal Reforms
  Conclusion

CHAPTER FOUR: .................................................................................................. p.79 - p.95
LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL AND THE CHINESE REPRESENTATION
  Chinese Representation: Two Abortive Attempts
  Hennessy's Proposal for Legislative Reform
  Reaction of the Chinese and the European Communities
  The Colonial Office's Consideration and Decision
  Conclusion
CHAPTER FIVE: ................................................................. p.96 - p.111
CITY HALL MUSEUM INCIDENT–HENNESSY VS. WILLIAM KESWICK
   The Concept of Racial Segregation
   Arguments of Hennessy and the City Hall Committee
   The Colonial Office's Attitude towards the Incident
   Reaction of the English Press in Hong Kong
   Hennessy-Keswick Collision
   Conclusion

CHAPTER SIX: ................................................................. p.112 - p.128
HENNESSY’S DEPARTURE AND ITS AFTERMATH
   Eitel-Hayllar Scandal and Hennessy’s departure
   The Collapse of Land Speculation
   The Tung Wah Hospital and the Registrar General
   Enduring Clashes of Hennessy and the European Community
   Conclusion

CONCLUSION ................................................................. p.129 - p.138

NOTES ........................................................................ p.139 - p.163

APPENDICES ................................................................. p.164 - p.169

BIBLIOGRAPHY ........................................................... p.170 - p.178

GLOSSARY ................................................................. p.179

VITA ........................................................................ p.180