Church and State Relations in Contemporary China:
A Case Study of the Wenzhou Catholic Church

LAW Wing Leung

A thesis submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of
Master of Philosophy

Principal Supervisor: Dr. CHAN Shun Hing

Hong Kong Baptist University

September 2010
Abstract

Since the implementation of the reform and opening policy, economic change has influenced China’s political, economic and societal structure. In the coastal areas, some provinces and cities have experienced significant economic growth, including Wenzhou in the Zhejiang Province. In addition, religions in China have also been revived in the reform era, and the number of religious believers is increasing rapidly. Similarly, some churches have experienced dramatic changes as the result of state intervention and wider social forces. Although a web of religious regulation has been introduced since the 1980s, religions in China, including Christianity, are still able to find free spaces in which to develop. As economic growth, state intervention and social forces become intertwined, church and state relations in contemporary China have begun to change and interact with Chinese society. Based on a field study, this dissertation examines church and state relations in the Wenzhou diocese in contemporary China using an analytical framework of state-society relations and theoretical approaches to civil society.

This study finds that the Wenzhou Catholic Church exhibits several significant characteristics of civil society to varying degrees, for example, in terms of independence, self-organizing structures, the power of church elites and laity, and the rational-critical discourse of the Wenzhou model. Furthermore, the main characteristics of the church and state relations in Wenzhou during the reform period are found to be diverse, dynamic and complicated.
Table of Contents

Declaration i
Abstract ii
Acknowledgements iii
Table of Contents iv
List of Abbreviation vi

Chapter One: Introduction

Chapter Two: Theoretical Framework for Analysis 6
2.1 State-Society Relations 6
2.2 Western Civil Society Theory 11
2.3 The Studies of Civil Society in Contemporary China 20
  2.3.1 The First Stage 21
  2.3.2 The Second Stage 29
2.4 Civil Society and the Case Studies of Chinese Christianity 35
  2.4.1 Catholicism 35
  2.4.2 Protestantism 45
2.5 Summary 50

Chapter Three: Data and Methodology 51

Chapter Four: Religious Regulations in the Reform Era 57
4.1 Introduction 57
4.2 Religious Regulations 61
  4.2.1 The First Stage: 1982-1989 61
  4.2.2 The Second Stage: 1989-2000 69
  4.2.3 The Third Stage: 2000-Present 76
4.3 Institutions of the Party-State and Patriotic Religious Organizations 86
  4.3.1 Institutions of the Party-State 87
    4.3.1.1 United Front Work Department 87
    4.3.1.2 State Administration of Religious Affairs 88
    4.3.1.3 The Ministry of Public Security 90
  4.3.2 Patriotic Religious Organizations 90
    4.3.2.1 Chinese Catholic Patriotic Association 90
    4.3.2.2 Chinese Catholic Bishops’ Conference 91
4.4 Summary 92

Chapter Five: The Development of the Wenzhou Catholic Church 95
5.1 Introduction 95
5.2 The Developmental Process of the Wenzhou Catholic Church 98
5.3 Religion and Economy: Christianity in Wenzhou 104
5.4 Summary 111

Chapter Six: Church and State Relations in the Wenzhou Diocese 114
6.1 In Search of Independence and Self-Governance: Divisions, Strategies and the Shaping of Diverse Patterns 114
  6.1.1 The First Stage of Division: 1970-early 1980s 116

iv
6.1.2 The Second Stage of Division: Early 1980-1999
6.1.2.1 The Former Part of the Second Stage
6.1.2.2 The Latter Part of the Second Stage
6.1.3 The Third Stage of Division: 1999-Present
6.1.4 Analysis and Summary
6.1.4.1 Different Levels of Independence
6.1.4.2 The Chinese Catholic Church and Civil Society: Embedded Autonomy
6.1.4.3 Complicated Patterns of Interactive Relations: Conflict with Cooperation
6.2 Self-Organizing Consciousness and Ability: Management, Organizational Structure and Varieties of Religious Activities
6.2.1 Self-Organizing Consciousness: Proactive Management and Organizational Structure
6.2.2 Self-Organizing Ability: Various Religious Activities with High Quality and Quantity
6.3 The Power of Catholics in the Wenzhou Diocese: Lay Leaders and Boss Christians
6.3.1 Lay Leaders: Social Actors that Participate in Church Development and Decision Making
6.3.2 Boss Christians: Transformation of “Capitals” and Church Development
6.4 The “Wenzhou Model” as a Rational-Critical Discourse: Negotiation Based on Principles
6.4.1 Rational-Critical Discourse: The Confrontation between “Reasonable” and “Normal”
6.4.2 The Core of the Discourse is Unchangeable: the Relationship between Head and Body
6.4.3 Summary

Chapter Seven: Discussion and Conclusion

Bibliography

Curriculum Vitae