‘Risk and Pleasure: A Comparison of the Clubbing Experiences between Higher and Lower Educated Female Youth in Hong Kong’

WONG Sze Man

A thesis submitted in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Philosophy

Principal Supervisor: Dr. Wong Kit Mui Day

Hong Kong Baptist University

September 2011
ABSTRACT

Taking into consideration the intersectionality of gender and educational attainments, this study investigates the clubbing experiences of heterosexual female youths in Hong Kong. The data in this study originate from in-depth interviews with sixteen young female clubbers who are differentiated by educational attainments. The findings showed that the higher educated and the lower educated female respondents are two groups of clubbers with distinct clubbing practices and experiences. Although clubbing was recognized as liberating and pleasurable, the higher educated female clubbers experienced clubbing as an adventure to express an alternative sense of self while the lower educated female clubbers recognized clubbing as a common type of leisure activity that enabled them to partake in communal fun. Moreover, the clubbing practices and experiences of the higher educated and the lower educated female clubbers indicate their different ways of doing femininity on appearances, heterosexual intimate relationships, marriage and motherhood. This study reconceptualizes the discussion of youth leisure in the context of social division and sheds light on the role of education in shaping youth lifestyles. The intersection of gender and educational attainments has complicated the ways of doing femininity.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

DECLARATION ........................................................................................................ i

ABSTRACT........................................................................................................... ii

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT ...................................................................................... iii

TABLE OF CONTENTS ...................................................................................... iv

LIST OF TABLES ............................................................................................. vii

Chapter 1 Introduction ......................................................................................... 1
  Organization of thesis ....................................................................................... 3

Chapter 2 Literature Review ................................................................................ 5
  From youth subculture to club culture ............................................................... 5
  Clubbing as a sexual politic: experiencing alternative ways of femininity and sexuality ................................................................. 11
    Dancing: self-expression and auto-eroticism .................................................. 11
    Drug-taking: being publicly visible and sexually assertive ............................ 12
    Clubbing as sexual liberation ...................................................................... 14
  Negotiating risks and pleasures ...................................................................... 16
    The risk of sexual harassment .................................................................... 16
    The stigmatization of female drug users ...................................................... 18
    Tension between being a clubber and being a woman .............................. 19
  The segmentation of club scenes: rethinking the relations between social divisions, leisure and lifestyles ......................................................... 20
    Leisure, lifestyle and educational trajectory ............................................... 20
  The intersections of social status and gender in shaping female experiences and subjectivities ........................................................... 25
  Clubbing in Chinese society .......................................................................... 28
  Research Focus ............................................................................................... 29

Chapter 3 Data and Methodology ...................................................................... 31

Chapter 4 The divisions in clubbing lifestyles ................................................... 35
  Segmentation of clubbing spaces and groups .................................................. 35
  Differentiation of clubbing practices ............................................................... 41
    Clubbing ages .............................................................................................. 41
    The use of drugs ......................................................................................... 43
    Frequency of clubbing ............................................................................... 46
Future aspirations .............................................................................................................48

Chapter 5 Clubbing as liberating experiences .............................................................53
The higher educated: experience an alternative sense of self by clubbing ...............53
Experiencing a frenzied self .........................................................................................54
Experiencing a sexual self ...........................................................................................58
Sexual culture of clubbing in Hong Kong .................................................................58
Dressing up for clubbing: pleasure of presenting glamorous and sexualized images .............................................................................................................61
Engaging in casual intimate contact: the pleasure of expressing sexual subjectivity .....................................................................................................................65
The lower educated: clubbing as an antidote for boredom and alienation ............69
A sense of boredom and alienation in daily life .......................................................69
The ecstatic pleasures of clubbing ............................................................................73
The communal fun of clubbing ...................................................................................75

Chapter 6 The Safety Issues of Clubbing: Balancing Pleasure and Risks .........81
Negotiating unwanted attention and sexual advances ............................................81
Negotiating disrespectful treatment from men ..........................................................85
Negotiating sexual expectations .............................................................................90
Balancing the Risks and Pleasures of Clubbing .......................................................94

Chapter 7 Negotiation of stigmatized female clubber identities ......................96
The higher educated respondents: ‘Slut’ stigma on engaging in casual sexual relationships .................................................................................................................96
Constructing intimate behaviours with male strangers as ‘social play’ ...............97
Maintaining sexual passivity ..................................................................................101
Construction of women who engage in casual sex as the other and inferior ..........103
The lower educated respondents: ‘Delinquent youth”: engaging in night life activities and drug-taking ......................................................................................108
Drug-taking as recreational and non-addicting .......................................................111
Balancing pleasure and risks ...............................................................................113
Framing past drug-taking experiences into youthful playfulness .......................117

Chapter 8 Doing femininities: Intersectionality of gender and educational attainment ..............................................................120
Doing femininities on appearance ...........................................................................120
Views on sexy clubbing clothing ...........................................................................121
The practices of dressing up ..................................................................................123
Doing femininities within a heterosexual relationship ...........................................134
Doing femininities with marriage and motherhood

Chapter 9 Conclusion

APPENDIX

BIBLIOGRAPHY

CURRICULUM VITAE